NOTE

Names appearing in heavy type are the names of Post Offices.

A numeral in brackets following the name of a River, Lake, Creek or Inlet refers to its length in miles. Where no figure is given it signifies that the River or Lake is small. In the case of a mountain the figures refers to its height in feet.

All names appearing on the maps issued by the Information Bureau of the Provincial Government will be found in this book.

BRITISH COLUMBIA, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean, is the largest Province in the Dominion, its area being variously estimated at from 372,630 to 395,610 square miles. It is a great irregular quadrangle about 700 miles from north to south, with an average width of about 400 miles, lying between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north. It is bounded on the south by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and the States of Washington, Idaho and Montana, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Southern Alaska, on the north by Yukon and Mackenzie Territories, and on the east by the Province of Alberta. From the 49th degree north to the 54th degree the eastern boundary follows the axis of the Rocky Mountains and thence north along the 120th Meridian.

The Province is traversed from south to north by four principal ranges of mountains—the Rocky and the Selkirk on the east, and the Coast and Island ranges on the west. The Rocky Mountain range preserves its continuity, but the Selkirks are broken up into the Purcell, the Selkirk, the Gold and the Caribou mountains. Between these ranges and the Rockies lies a valley of remarkable length and regularity, extending from the international boundary line, along the western base of the Rockies northerly 700 miles. West of these ranges extends a vast plateau or table land with an average elevation of 3,500 feet above the sea level, but so worn away and eroded by water courses that in many parts it presents the appearance of a succession of mountains. In others it spreads out into wide plains and rolling ground, dotted with low hills, which constitute fine areas of farming and pasture lands. This interior plateau is bounded on the west by the Coast Range and on the north by a cross range which gradually merges into the Arctic slope.

One of the noticeable physical features of British Columbia is its position as the watershed of the North Pacific slope. All the great rivers flowing into the Pacific Ocean, with the exception of the Colorado, find their sources within its boundaries. The more important of these are: The Columbia (the principal waterway of the State of Washington), which flows through the Province for over 600 miles; the Fraser, 750 miles long, the Skeena, 300 miles; the Thompson, the Kootenay, the Naas, the Stikine, the Liard and the Peace.

Varied climatic conditions prevail in British Columbia. The Japanese current and the moisture-laden winds from the Pacific exercise a moderating influence upon the climate of the coast and provide a copious rainfall. The westerly winds are arrested in their passage east by the Coast Range, thus creating what is known as the "dry belt" east of those mountains, but the higher currents of air carry the moisture to the loftier peaks of the Selkirks, causing the heavy snowfall which distinguishes that range from its eastern neighbor, the Rockies.

The climate of Vancouver Island, and the coast generally, corresponds very closely with that of England; the summers are fine and warm with much bright sunshine, and severe frost scarcely ever occurs in winter. On the mainland similar conditions prevail till the higher levels are reached, when the winters are cooler.

To the eastward of the Coast Range, in Yale and West Kootenay, the climate is quite different. The summers are warmer, the winters colder and the rainfall rather light—bright, dry weather being the rule. The winter cold is, however, scarcely ever severe, and the hottest days of summer are made pleasant from the fact that the air is dry and the nights are cool. Farther north, in the undeveloped parts of the Province, the winters are more severe. (Official Bulletin No. 23.)

Pamphlets dealing with the various districts of British Columbia and their resources, etc., are issued gratis by the Information Bureau of the Provincial Government at Victoria.

VANCOUVER, the commercial metropolis of the Province and the terminus of the C.P.R., is situated on the S. side of Burrard Inlet, about 35 m. N. of the U.S.A. boundary, 84 m. N.E. of Victoria, and 155 m. N. of Seattle, U.S.A. The site is an ideal one for a large city and the growth of Vancouver especially during the last few years has been phenomenal. The city, which was incorporated in 1886, possesses many fine public buildings, business blocks, and private residences and new structures are being added every day. The hotels, churches, schools and clubs are quite equal to buildings of similar class in the older cities of the East. The climate is extremely temperate, the Summers never getting excessively hot and snow in the Winter is very rare. As a shipping port, Vancouver with its splendid harbor, has already become an important place, for besides the large coast trade, vessels from all parts of the world are to be found within the harbor. One of Vancouver's great attractions is Stanley Park, a wonderful natural preserve containing 950 acres and encircled by beautiful drives. There is a very complete electric railway system, with extensions to New Westminster and Steveston. There is an unlimited water supply, gas and electric light, and a modern sewerage system. The fire department is one of the most up-to-date in America. Full particulars regarding Vancouver can be obtained from the Tourist Association, 633 Granville Street. Pop. 100,000.

VANCOUVER, the commercial metropolis of the Province and the terminus of the C.P.R., is situated on the S. side of Burrard Inlet, about 35 m. N. of the U.S.A. boundary, 84 m. N.E. of Victoria, and 155 m. N. of Seattle, U.S.A. The site is an ideal one for a large city and the growth of Vancouver especially during the last few years has been phenomenal. The city, which was incorporated in 1886, possesses many fine public buildings, business blocks, and private residences and new structures are being added every day. The hotels, churches, schools and clubs are quite equal to buildings of similar class in the older cities of the East. The climate is extremely temperate, the Summers never getting excessively hot and snow in the Winter is very rare. As a shipping port, Vancouver with its splendid harbor, has already become an important place, for besides the large coast trade, vessels from all parts of the world are to be found within the harbor. One of Vancouver's great attractions is Stanley Park, a wonderful natural preserve containing 950 acres and encircled by beautiful drives. There is a very complete electric railway system, with extensions to New Westminster and Steveston. There is an unlimited water supply, gas and electric light, and a modern sewerage system. The fire department is one of the most up-to-date in America. Full particulars regarding Vancouver can be obtained from the Tourist Association, 633 Granville Street. Pop. 100,000.

..Watches for Service..

Guard against the annoyance and trouble an inferior unreliable watch will cause—Buy a Birks' Watch.

Our movements are made by the finest watchmakers in the world. The grades we carry have been tested and proved to be exceptional in time-keeping and serviceable qualities.

The price of a Birks' Watch is a telling argument.

Birks catalogue illustrates a full line of Watches, Jewellery, Silverware, Cut Glass, Silverplate, and all kindred lines. Always keep a copy in the home.

We maintain a large Optical Department.
